

Mutual Screw & Supply Announces Expanded List of Materials for Fasteners to Meet Rising Customer Demand

FIVEOFF Promotion Continues through February

Rochelle Park, NJ, February 18, 2012 --(PR.com)-- Mutual Screw & Supply has expanded its inventory of fastener materials to meet the increasing demands of its customers.

As an industry leader, Mutual stocks 75,000 different kinds of fasteners, many featuring specialty materials. If it isn't in stock or in production, Mutual will source or manufacture fasteners made to customer's exact specifications.

Some of the more hard-to-find materials Mutual routinely has in stock include:

- Inconel: A nickel/chromium alloy, Inconel is oxidation and corrosion resistant and perfect for high heat and pressure environments.
- K-Monel: Comprised of nickel, copper, iron and other trace elements, Monel is highly resistant to corrosion and acids.
- 316 Stainless Steel: Both rust and corrosion resistant, 316 Stainless is ideal for fasteners being used outdoors or in facilities like restaurants, where water use is heavy.

Mutual also offers traditional materials such as alloy steel, aluminum, copper and more.

“We're keeping up with the latest trends in materials along with having the traditional materials in stock at all times,” said Mutual Screw & Supply President Mark Warner. “Most customers know about our extensive inventory of fasteners, but now they're finding out about our extensive selection of specialty materials.”
